Confidentiality - What you tell us is Private

Talking to Supportive Parents means that we do not tell anyone else what you say, for example your school or parents.

Sometimes it is good to talk to other people about what you think and want. Other people you can talk to can be your parents, teachers or doctors.

Supportive Parents will always ask you if this is OK first. You can say Yes or No.

We write information about our meetings on our computers. Only people at Supportive Parents will see this.

Supportive Parents must tell someone if we are worried that somebody is not safe or may not be safe.

If this happens, we will try to talk to you about it first but we don't need your permission.

Talking to Supportive Parents in private may help you feel more confident, help you ask questions and make good choices.
